About the Program

This program has been designed for those who may have completed a number of 5km events and looking to step up and complete the 10km distance.

Developed by professional distance runner & recreational running coach Riley Cocks.

About Riley

Riley is a professional Australian Distance runner, Physiotherapist & Recreational Running Coach. He is the co-founder and head coach of Adelaide based running group and online coaching service RunAsOne.

He holds personal bests of 1:02.54 for the half-marathon, 28:45 for 10,000m, and 13:50 for 5,000m. As a coach Riley draws on over a decade of running experience combined with his background in physiotherapy and 6 years of working in a running specialty store. He is eager to share his wealth of knowledge in the latest training philosophies, recovery techniques, injury prevention to help runners of all levels to reach their goals.

Training Terms

EASY

This level of effort should largely feel easy aerobically but wont always be easy. For example a 10min run at an easy pace vs your first 90min run at easy pace. The pace will be the same however, due to the increase in duration, it will likely not feel easy towards the end until you adapt to the increase. But a good simple test to tell you are in the easy/aerobic zone is the talk test. You should be able to have a conversation. If you cant, you are probably going too hard.

SOLID

This level of effort is a touch harder than easy. It's more of a tempo effort. A simple test would be you should be able to chat but not at the same level as Easy/aerobic. For example you might be able to have a conversation but it would be very difficult to maintain or would be broken so you could catch your breath.

HARD

This level of effort should be difficult and uncomfortable to sustain. You wont feel like talking and if you tried it would only be a few words as you should be breathing quite heavily.

Recovery is Training

THE IMPORTANCE OF RECOVERY

The only training you benefit from is the training you recover from.

It's true that pushing your limits makes you perform better. But the closer you get to the edge, the higher the risk of injury or illness.

That's why recovery is so important.

The better you recover, the better you can train. And ultimately, the better you will perform.

Recovery days are scheduled during the week. If this exact schedule doesn't suit your weekly schedule make sure you are scheduling rest and recovery days in between harder efforts to ensure you adapt and recover.
